LONDON CITY

Traditional leather manufacturing process is divided into three fundamental sub-processes: preparatory stages, tanning, and crusting. All our leathers undergo these sub-processes.

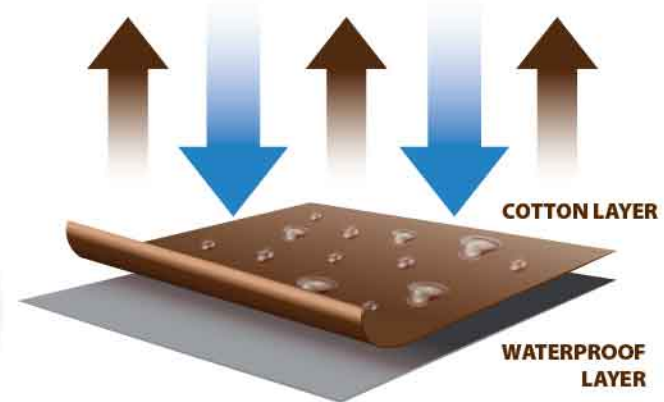

Troop London utilises the latest methods in bag making combined with traditional skilled leather craftsmanship to bring you some of the finest accessory collections.

Our cotton pulp is most often spun into yarn or thread and used to make a soft, breathable canvas material. The use of cotton for fabric bags is known to date to prehistoric times; fragments of cotton fabric dated from 5000 BC. Our cotton is conventionally stone washed to give a unique soft feel and shape to Troops collection.

Quality control remains paramount to the philosophy in producing a well made bag. Every bag that Troop London makes undergoes stringent examination before being given our seal of approval.

Precision making techniques

Water Resistant Technology

Troop continues to be one of the UK leaders in the design and marketing of premium canvas-leather accessories for consumers who value the outdoors and their time in it.

As always, the fortunes and future of Troop are of great interest, especially to those who share our passion for beauty and practicability.

Our mission at Troop, since the company was founded, has been to create and build beautiful natural products. We hope that our bags bring enjoyment and function to your modern life.

Troop® products offer quality workmanship and detailing which are built to withstand the elements of today's busy changing environments.

Creating exclusive, organic and understated bags has always been a Troop hallmark.
